

African-American Recipients of the Congressional Medal of Honor

African-Americans Recipients of the Medal of Honor: In the years since the U. S. Medal of Honor was first established by President Abraham Lincoln in 1863 up to the end of the Korean War, 62 African-American soldiers, sailors, and army scouts have received the Medal for gallantry and heroism in the face of battle. Almost all of them were awarded prior to 1914, designating gallantry in the Civil War, the western campaigns or so-called Indian Wars, and the Spanish-American War. Only one medal was awarded to a black soldier during World War I, and none of the 433 Medals granted were awarded to blacks during World War II. In 1992, the U. S. army reviewed the W.W. II records of African-American service men and women, and seven candidates were subsequently recognized for their valor. This map presents information on each of the African-American recipients of the Medal of Honor. Teachers and students are invited to use this information along with the overview essay on "The African-American Military Experience in Jim Crow America" for individual and group projects on the role of racism and segregation in the U. S. military from 1863 to 1954.

SOUTH CAROLINA

STOWERS, FREDDIE (World War I 1918)

Rank: Corporal
Service: U.S. Army
Birthday: 1896
Place of Birth: Sandy Springs, Anderson County, South Carolina
Date of Death: 28 September 1918
Place of Death: Champagne Marne Sector, France
Cemetery: A.B.M.C. Meuse-Argonne Cemetery--Meuse, France
Entered Service at: Anderson County, South Carolina
Unit: Company C, 371st Infantry Regiment, 93rd Division
Served as: Squad Leader
Battle or Place of Action: Hill 188, Champagne Marne Sector, France
Date of Action: 28 September 1918
Date of Presentation: 24 April 1991
Place of Presentation: President George Bush presented this citation to Lawson's sisters: "Cpl. Freddie Stowers distinguished himself by exceptional heroism on 28 September 1918 while serving as a squad leader in Company C, 371st Infantry Regiment, 93rd Infantry Division. His company was the lead company during the attack on Hill 188, Champagne Marne Sector, France, during World War I. A few minutes after the attack began, the enemy ceased firing and began climbing up onto the parapets of the trenches, holding up their arms as if wishing to surrender. The enemy's actions caused the American forces to ceasefire and to come out into the open. As the company started forward and when within about 100 meters of the trench line, the enemy jumped back into their trenches and greeted Cpl. Stowers' company with interlocking bands of machine-gun fire and mortar fire causing well over fifty percent casualties. Faced with incredible enemy resistance, Cpl. Stowers took charge, setting such a courageous example of bravery and leadership that he inspired his men to follow him in the attack. With extraordinary heroism and complete disregard of personal danger under devastating fire, he crawled forward, leading his squad toward an enemy machine-gun nest which was causing heavy casualties to his company. After fierce fighting, the machine-gun position was destroyed and the enemy soldiers were killed. Displaying great courage and intrepidity Cpl. Stowers continued to press the attack against a determined enemy. While crawling forward and urging his men to continue the attack on a second trench line, he was gravely wounded by machine-gun fire. Although Cpl. Stowers was mortally wounded, he pressed forward, urging on the members of his squad, until he died. Inspired by the heroism and display of bravery of Cpl. Stowers, his company continued the attack against incredible odds, contributing to the capture of Hill 188 and causing heavy enemy casualties. Cpl. Stowers' conspicuous gallantry, extraordinary heroism, and supreme devotion to his men were well above and beyond the call of duty, follow the finest traditions of military service, and reflect the utmost credit on him and the United States Army.
