

PART THREE: The Brown Cases, 1950-1952

-35-

One cannot help but wonder why these experts were willing to come to Topeka from educational posts largely in eastern universities, and with ~~no~~ ^{little} public elementary school administration backgrounds, pose their opinion as to what is best for the Kansas public schools. The Superintendent of this school system, who has administered the schools for the past nine years, stated that he had found no objective evidence in the community on the part of the people in favor of mixed schools.

Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka, Defendant's Brief, 35